in Gage County

BEATRICE, Neb., May 14.—(Special Telegram.)-Prof. M. H. Swenk, assistant state entomologist, came down from Linceln Thursday morning and made a trip ever the eastern part of Gage county with Dwight S. Dalbey and John Dobha to inspect the wheat fields as regards chinch bugs, which he found prevalent, in many fields together with the Hessian flies. Prof. Swenk says that unless the weather is favorable to wheat and unfavorable to the pest great damage will by done to crops in this section within the next few weeks.

"In about ten days," said Prof Ewenk, the eggs which these bugs have laid will begin to hatch out and they will continue multiplying until harvest. If the weather is favorable they will go to the corn, and in some cases they strip a corn field bare."

He says that farmers should make a line of road all around their wheat fields son was discharged. The courts held that to prevent the bugs from going into their corn. It prevents the spread of the pest John R. Quem of this city has just recounties, Kansas, and he says that the
